Resp. Parents

Recently there was a video circulating on social media where a young boy of 15 years damaged almost all the property of his house just because her mother took away the mobile from him. This news was one off but heart wrenching.

The mobile has become an instrument to keep our children busy, so they do not harass their parents when they are young which leads to mobile addiction as they grow up. In many families all members are so busy with their mobiles that they do not even get time to have a decent conversation be it in their living room, restaurant or even during vacations.

As parents we wish to give our children the best but often are confused as to what constitutes love and care. We often equate showering material possessions on our children, giving them all the comforts in life as true love. On the contrary we are ensuring that children learn to believe that anything that they want in life can be had on demand without putting in any effort and that this is their right.

Children need time from their parents. A time with the child as a friend that will help develop a healthy relationship which in turn will help the child blossom, and not as a boss who keeps giving advice. Find time to play with your children, talking to them or just spending time with them doing all kinds of chores at home. Set up a family time every evening where all of the members can cherish every moment in each other's company just talking or playing while keeping all gadgets away.

We need not enforce our ideas upon or children, as they will lose their sense of independence, and this could result in rebelliousness later on. We just have to protect them from the wrong influences, the rest let them free. Let them make their own decisions for their life. They will enjoy the fruits of all the right decisions and learn from all the wrong decisions that they make for themselves.

Respect your children, their life and all their decisions and cherish them the way they are and do not expect them to be what they cannot be. Enjoy your child's company.
